Summary

SYFS total reach in 2020

Save Youth Future (SYFS), with the support of its young volunteers and strong partnership with the local community and international non-governmental organizations, was able to continue its programmes and work towards achieving its goal during this difficult year. Despite the challenges, youth remained strongly present in their local communities and providing the necessary support and awareness to overcome the COVID-19 crisis.

SYFS maintained its work in the field of economic empowerment and education to ensure that this crisis doesn't further undermine people's access to financial support nor quality education. Furthermore, SYFS staff and volunteers managed to develop their skills in using IT programmes to implement the activities and overcome any disruption to their work. While 2020 has been challenging, it helped make SYFS and its volunteers become stronger, more resilient, efficient and effective.

Civic Participation Programme

SYFS continued its support towards increasing youth civic participation, as such youth continued to spread the values of peace, tolerance and non-violence in their communities, they also implemented community initiatives and increased awareness of SRH as well as COVID-19. Moreover, they participated in UN75 anniversary campaign and the Generation Unlimited challenge.

Economic Empowerment Programme

In 2020, SYFS work focused on the support of women and youth entrepreneurs by raising awareness on the new freelance and IT opportunities via social initiatives as well as support business development and training youth on risk management.

Education Programme

In partnership with UNICEF, SYFS developed and rolled out a Child-Friendly Code of Conduct to help children, teachers and principals. It also provided extracurricular activities in music, drama and arts as well as provision of recreational kits. Moreover, it raised awareness among parents on how to address violence and strengthened the structures, role and responsibilities of School Support Committees and community network groups to increase their support for children's learning process. In addition, SYFS in partnership with UNDP also continued its support for Al-Fakhoura university students.
